

Phase 3: Deployment Part 1

Personal Blog on IBM Cloud Static Web Apps

Description:

The images show the home page of our application TripVista, a personal travel blog website with a simple header and a navigation bar.

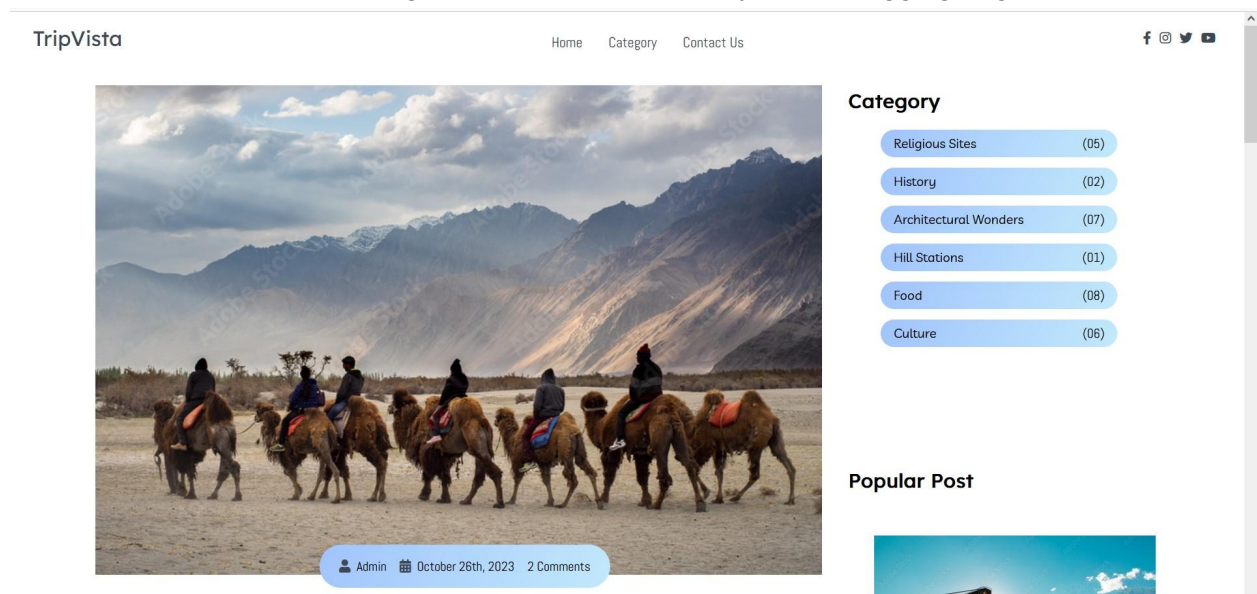

The details of the blogs could be found by clicking the Read More button which contains elaborate descriptions of the places.

The above image is the footer followed by a few Blogging pages.

Ladakh: The Historical Land Of Ancient Monasteries, Nomadic Tribes And High Passes

Ladakh, the historical land of ancient monasteries, nomadic tribes, and high passes, beckoned with promises of adventure and serenity. Touching down in Leh, the capital of Ladakh, the Himalayan landscape greeted me with awe-inspiring vistas. I checked into my hotel, acclimatized to the high altitude, and began my journey in this enchanting region by exploring the historic town of Leh. Stay tuned for 12 days of exploration and discovery in Ladakh!

Day 1: Arrival in Leh

As the plane descended into Leh, I was immediately struck by the breathtaking views of the Himalayan mountains. Landing at an altitude of over 11,000 feet, the thin air was noticeable. I checked into my hotel and spent the day acclimatizing, sipping on butter tea, and exploring the charming town of Leh, known for its historic bazaars and monasteries.

Day 2: Thiksey Monastery and Shey Palace

Today, I ventured out to explore some of Ladakh's ancient monasteries. I started with Thiksey Monastery, perched atop a hill and resembling the Potala Palace in Lhasa. The panoramic views of the Indus Valley from here were simply awe-inspiring. In the afternoon, I visited Shey Palace, a former royal residence with a stunning golden Buddha statue.

Day 3: Hemis Monastery and Hemis National Park

Hemis Monastery, one of the most famous in Ladakh, was my first stop today. It's known for its annual Hemis Festival, celebrating the birth of Guru Padmasambhava. In the afternoon, I explored Hemis National Park, hoping to spot some of Ladakh's unique wildlife, including snow leopards and blue sheep.

Day 4: Pangong Lake

I embarked on an early morning drive to Pangong Lake, a high-altitude gem that stretches from India to Tibet. The lake's changing shades of blue against the backdrop of stark mountains are a sight to behold. I even took a short hike around the lake's shore to truly immerse myself in its beauty.

Day 5: Nubra Valley and Diskit Monastery

Today, I made my way to Nubra Valley via the world's highest motorable pass, Khardung La. The valley is known for its stark, arid landscapes and the Diskit Monastery, which houses a colossal Maitreya Buddha statue. The valley also offered the unique experience of a double-humped Bactrian camel ride in the sand dunes of Hunder.

Day 6: Turtuk Village

I set off to explore the remote village of Turtuk, which is the last village on the India-Pakistan border. The village is home to the Balti people, known for their warmth and hospitality. I wandered through the narrow streets, interacted with the locals, and sampled delicious Balti cuisine.

Day 7: Alchi Monastery and Likir Monastery

I headed west to Alchi and Likir Monasteries, both known for their ancient and intricate frescoes. Alchi, in particular, boasts some of the oldest surviving paintings in Ladakh, dating back to the 11th century. The serene surroundings and ancient art were a testament to Ladakh's rich cultural heritage.

Day 8: Lamayuru Monastery and Moonland

Lamayuru Monastery, perched atop a rugged hill, was my first stop today. It's one of the oldest monasteries in Ladakh and offers stunning vistas of the lunar-like landscape that surrounds it. The unique topography in this area is often referred to as "Moonland" due to its otherworldly appearance.

Day 9: Chadar Trek

I couldn't leave Ladakh without experiencing the thrill of the Chadar Trek, a unique winter journey on the frozen Zaskar River. Walking on the frozen river with towering ice cliffs on either side was both challenging and exhilarating. The trek provided me with a deeper connection to Ladakh's natural wonders.

Day 10: Traditional Ladakhi Homestay

I spent a night in a traditional Ladakhi homestay in a remote village, immersing myself in the culture and daily life of the locals. I tried my hand at traditional cooking, listened to fascinating stories, and slept under the starry Ladakhi sky.

Day 11: Monastery Hopping in Leh

On my penultimate day, I revisited some of Leh's monasteries, taking the time to meditate and soak in the spiritual energy. The peaceful surroundings and the scent of burning juniper incense were a soothing end to my journey.

Day 12: Departure

With a heavy heart, I bid farewell to Ladakh, a land of stark beauty and warm-hearted people. The memories of ancient monasteries, high mountain passes, and the ethereal landscapes will stay with me forever. As I boarded the plane, I knew that I would always cherish this incredible adventure in the historical land of Ladakh. With a heavy heart, I bid farewell to Ladakh, a land of stark beauty and warm-hearted people. The memories of ancient monasteries, high mountain passes, and the ethereal landscapes will stay with me forever. As I boarded the plane, I knew that I would always cherish this incredible adventure in the historical land of Ladakh.

Feb 14, 2019 4 Comments

Shimla Kullumanali Chandigarh

January 14, 2020 2 Comments

Highway in the Middle of the Forest

March 4, 2020 1 Comments

Wayanad Tour from Bangalore

sep 19, 2022 5 Comments

Abbey Falls via Private Coffee Plantations

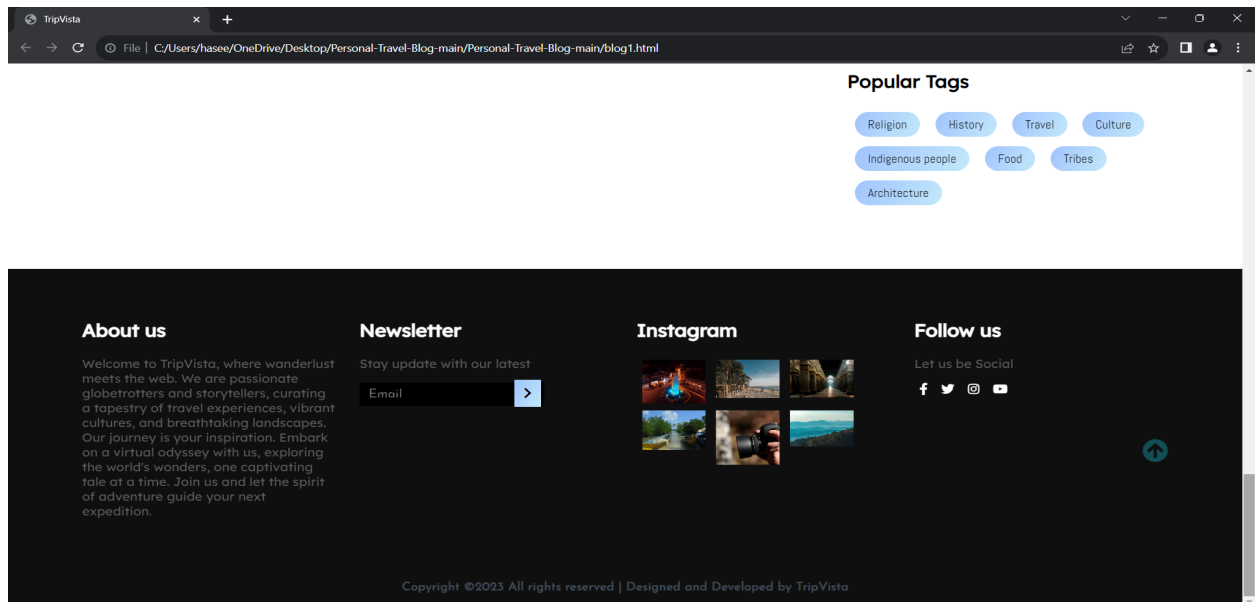

May 24, 2022 7 Comments

A Tri-Continental Endeavor

Popular Tags

- Religion
- History
- Travel
- Culture
- Indigenous people
- Food
- Tribes
- Architecture

Git Hub Link